1) Fantasy Politics
2) http://chooseyourchief.com
   1. Best viewed on latest versions of Mozilla Firefox
3) Group Members
   1. Tim Donegan, MIT, 2014, EECS, no prior experience
   2. Britt Cyr, MIT, 2014, EECS, no prior experience
   3. Sharon Hao, MIT, 2014, EECS, no prior experience
4) Many people our age are not very politically engaged. Teenagers and young adults are a huge portion of the ballot, and are acutely affected by political decisions. We should pay more attention to decisions that have a substantial impact on our lives.
5) Fantasy Sports has become a huge hit, and we are using its popularity to draw attention to politics. Many people who are disinterested in politics can't get enough of fantasy sports; thus, fantasy politics will give them a dose of political knowledge to go along with their love of competition!
6) AJAX, PHP, SQL
7) HTML, CSS, JAVASCRIPT, jQuery
8) Site Features
   1. Create Account
   2. login
      1. cookies or username email
   3. password recovery
   4. score tracker
   5. rss feed
   6. facebook page
   7. edit profile
   8. statistics
   9. leaderboard
   10. interactive map
      1. My Predictions
      2. Primary Results
      3. Poll Results (from other users)
      4. View Friend's Selections
   11. Candidate Info
   12. FAQ
   13. About Us
   14. Logout
9) The interactive map is our strongest feature. It allows the user to make and change predictions, view primary results, and view their friend's picks. Interactive visual aids add value to the site as they are much more alluring than plain text or tables.
10) Our site is a unique blend of politics and competition.
11) Facebook, modernizr, Wikipedia svg
12) Yes, we have 50 MIT student users and counting :)
13) No
14) Yes